

Comment from Mervyn Rolls, committee member and web co-ordinator.

The past two months have only had short bursts of decent weather, most discouraging of any boating activities. What has happened to those spells of settled winter weather we used to get not that long ago? When it was very worthwhile to cruise the Erne on flat calm water in winter sunshine. Trees without leaves so that the countryside was more visible than summer. Even with a frost, an efficient heater on the boat meant overnight stays were possible.

Since the changes to our committee last November, we have had a successful and enjoyable Christmas Walk. Now with the longer daylight hours, we need to plan for this year's events, and need to gather our committee members together for a meeting. We are considering a branch visit to the Ulster Canal section from Lough Erne to Clones, but for now if anybody wishes to find out what is happening there I suggest a look at the web site which I found by going to - ' Waterways Ireland - Ulster Canal Restoration - Lough Erne to Clones. There is also a web site – www.ahg.gov.ie

More information to come as it becomes available.
